

The Towers of the Waldorf Astoria: inside New York's most exclusive games rooms

Residents of The Towers will have access to The Monte Carlo Gaming Room and The Cue Club when the iconic hotel reopens

27 APR 2021

If you were to list the world's most iconic hotels then the Waldorf Astoria in New York City would no doubt feature near the top. Described as an "Art Deco masterpiece" by The Telegraph, the "ultimate Grand Dame" in midtown Manhattan first opened in 1931 and quickly became a home-away-from-home to Hollywood stars, celebrities and politicians.

The hotel's "glittering, high-society reputation" saw Marilyn Monroe, Frank Sinatra, and presidents Herbert Hoover and Dwight D. Eisenhower make their permanent homes there, Business Insider reports. And soon investors will be able to follow in the footsteps of Marilyn and "Ol' Blue Eyes" by buying a luxury condo in "The Towers" when the revamped hotel opens again in 2023.

Residents won't just have luxurious spaces to live in, but also for work, rest and play. Here we take a look inside The Towers of the Waldorf Astoria and its exclusive facilities, including The Monte Carlo Gaming Room and The Cue Club.

$1bn renovation

Currently undergoing a $1bn (£719.4m) renovation, the Waldorf Astoria is due to reopen in 2023 and will feature 375 large hotel rooms. There will also be 375 new luxury condos available for purchase within The Towers of the Waldorf Astoria. Property prices start from $1.8m (£1.29m).

Health and wellbeing

As well as the residences, The Towers will also include some of New York's most plush private amenities. Health facilities include the 25m indoor Starlight Pool, a fitness centre with private training studios, and wellness lounges each designed with a sauna, steam room, treatment rooms, and changing rooms.

Business and meetings

The Empire Club at The Towers will include a fully equipped business facility with private offices, a boardroom for conferences, meeting rooms and a coworking lounge.

Bars and dining

Entertainment and leisure facilities will be a major part of The Towers. There will be options such as the Winter Garden lounge with bar, Starlight Lounge, Starlight Terrace, Presidential Library and Bar, The Chrysler Room private dining room, the Stage & Screen Theater, and the Wine Tasting Room with Gaggenau wine vaults for private wine storage.

The Monte Carlo Gaming Room

One of the most unique offerings within The Towers are its games room. This room is named after Monte Carlo in Monaco - home to Hollywood royalty-turned-Princess Grace Kelly and Prince Rainier III of Monaco, who celebrated their engagement at the Waldorf Astoria in 1956.

Right on cue

Two nine-foot American pool tables and a standard size snooker table will take pride of place in The Cue Club. The games rooms will be connected by a private residential bar.

Luxury living

Described as a "one-of-a-kind luxury living experience", The Towers of the Waldorf Astoria will offer more than 50,000 sq ft of private residential amenities. See waldorftowers.nyc
